This letter was received from the Albuquerque Office by letter, October 18, 1950, which states the letter was found by Mrs. JUNE PREUE, cashier at the Sky. Chef Restaurant, Municipal Airport. The letter is signed "ETHELF". It is a friendly letter and among other things, asks Mrs. AND REON to give the enclosed clipping to HENRY. Enclosed with the letter is a clipping from Time magazine dated July 31, 1950, which mentions the arrest of DAVID GREENGIASS. Around the margin, apparently in ETHEL's handwriting, is written the following:

Re New York letter to the Bureau dated October 27, 1950.

The El Paso indices are negative regarding Mrs. FICTOR ANDERSON MENRY SUMMERFORD and Mrs. ETHEL LANE, aka Mrs. U11 Lane

On November 18, 1950, Mrs. VICTOR B. ANDERSON, 4205
Pershing Drive, El Paso, Texas, advised that HENRY and ETHEL, described in the letter set forth in the referenced communication, were her son-in-law HENRY SUMMERFORD and his sister, Mrs. ETHEL LANE, aka Mrs. UIL LANE, who resides 626 North Alameda Street, Las Cruces, New Mexico.
Mrs. ANDERSON stated that she did not know the subject of this case.

HENRY SUMMERPORD, Manager, Savage Oil Company, 720 South Florence, residing 4201 Pershing Drive, both El Paso, Texas, furnished the following information when interviewed on November 20, 1950:

One day last summer, he and his sister, Mrs. UIL LANE, residing 626 North Alameda Street, Las Cruces, New Mexico, were discussing various Russian spies concerning whom the papers and magazines at the time had lengthy articles. During the conversation there was some speculation as to how one spy would know another, and HENRY SUMERFORD mentioned that he had read somewhere that sometimes spies broke a bottle. After the bottle was broken one person kept one part and another part was taken away. Subsequently, when two individuals met and were able to fit the broken parts of the bottle together they knew that they were the right people. ETHEL'S letter regarding "CREENGLASS" apparently referred to SUMERFORD'S remarks as set forth above.

Mr. SUMMERFORD stated that he did not know GREENGLASS at all and that he does not recognize the photograph of GREEN-GLASS.

MEMO

RES ARTHUR SPRIGNAN INTERNAL SECURITY -R

On April 4th, 1951 a photograph of the captioned subject was exhibited to DAVID GR ENGLASS and he recognized it as an individual named ARTHUR who had come to the apartment occupied by DAVID GREEKGLASS and ETHEL GREEKGLASS sometime during the 1930's on about four or five occasions. He recalled that he had played the piano and the violin and on one occasion had repaired a violin. He also recalled that ARTHUR was either an associate or a partner in the COMO AERONAUTICAL COMPANY on 17th Street, which was started by a Negro mamped WILLIAMS who was an aviator and that JULIUS ROSENBERG and MARK PAGE were also working in the COMO AERONAUTICAL COMPANY at that time.

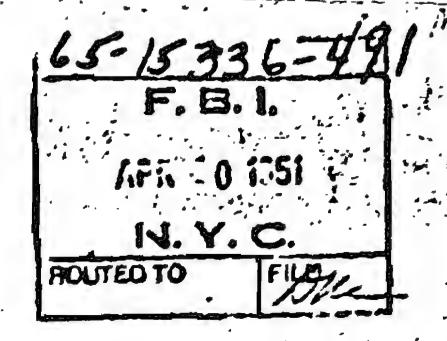

DAVID recalled that JULIUS ROSEIBERG became angry and had a fallen out with both WILLIAKS and ARTRUR concerning the business in which they were engaged. GREENGLASS statedthat he has not seen ARTHUR since JULIUS and ETHEL were married in 1939 and it may have been several years prior to that when he last saw ARTHUR. GREENGLASS was under the impression that ARTHUR is a Communist and thinks he heard some mention that ARTHUR was a Communist Party member.

GREENGLASS was also under the impression that all of the individuals connected with the COMO AERONAUTICAL COMPANY were Communists. GREENGLASS etated that he helicated that he helicated the helicated that he helicated the helicated t OREINGLASS was of the opinion that SAM FREUND might be able to furnish information concerning Anthur. According to GREENGLASS, SAM FREUND is a licensed electrician who did some electrical work for the COMO AERONAUTICAL COMPANY for which he was never paid and several of the members of the GREENGLASS family had felt that JULIUS HOSENEERG should have paid FREUND for this work.

standing by the milling machine at Pitt Machine Products Inc., probably in September or October 1948, but possibly in the spring of 1948, he was having a conversation with JULIUS ROSEMBERG and one or two others. The others were either EFRNARD GREENGLASS or MORRIS ISRAEL or both. During this conversation JULIUS ROSEMBERG and mentioned that the mathematics had been all worked out for construction of an atomic energy airplane meter. DAVID later asked JULIUS, in private, how JULIUS know shout this, and JULIU told him he had learned about it from one of his boys. DAVID then asked JULIUS about the possibility of the pilot receiving radiation-burns. JULIUS said this problem had been solved by placing the pilot and passengers far away from the shielded possibilant.

against his sister (not for his treason). He pointed out that anything car be accomplished at the prison and cited the recent killing of one WOTDARD the escape of the NOLAN's as well as other incidents. And advised that since it was learned that the Judged Court refused to grant a hearing to the MOSENBERGS there has been a sharp increase in ill Teeling toward CMENGIANS which gives him a strong feeling that someone will "got" him. He stated that his reasons for giving the information was that prison official never listen to an increase but that he feels were that he will soon read if the paper that remember has injured or killed the subject. He does not feel that GREENGLASS should be left at that institution as a temptation to some of the "regular guys" that are in for natural life and feel they have nothing to lose. He suggests that subject should be transferred to a lesser sentence institution such as Danbury. Mother-in-Law Begs A-Spy to Talk

Mrs. Tessie Greenglass, mother of one Rosenbergs may die any time after March 3. confessed alom spy and another doomed and silent one, today placed whatever hopes she has for the life of her daughter, Ethel Rosen-still loves without the need to understand berg, on a last-minute appeal to her son-in- them. law, Julius Posenberg, to tell the truth if the truth can save him.

Mrs. Greenglass will try to move through the courts to be allowed to talk to dulius no judge and no President. She saw Ethel arongs were beyond her; this was the world for an hour and a half some weeks ago; she of lawyers and great decision, a world she it left her no recourse but her stubborn, would not quit. silent son-in-law.

dren all in the same mess—a son, a son-inlaw and a daughter." Someone said the ner daughter-in-law, Ruth Greenglass, had seemed like a nice person and she said:

"They're all nice," she said. "Nice and intelligent. But maybe they've been fooling themselves."

"Is it so much? Say they give them 20 years. He'll be 62 when he gets out—or more. My son will be there 15 years; I suppose he did wrong and he will pay for it, but those others..."

She could not reach the President; now she had to try and reach Julius Rosenberg; who could tell her that there would be any soliness there?

"Tessie Greenglass stood up on the 23d floor of Rogge's Broadway office building and looked down on the lower Manhattan she does not often see from so far up.

She pointed to the Criminal Courts Building, and sold that her son had spent a year there. She pointed to the Federal Court Building where David Greenglass and the Rosenbergs had been tried and said, "Such a lut of steps."

Such a lot of steps for Tessie Greenglass, all leading at the end to the son-in-law she cannot be sure will see her. Even if he will, it will take a court order to get her in: the state law is very clear in saying that only the most immediate landity may see a prisoner in the death house.

For the last few months, she has left her Sheriff St. apartment for almost no other business but the case of her children. Most of the day she sits there in the house whind what was once her husband's store.

"It is the same house; I have been living here law Julius-if he would see her.

since-1914."

Ethel Rusenberg and David Greenglass were born there and grew up there; she is at home all day with nothing but the memory of them. For a little while after their arrest, she had Ethel and Julius' two sons to take care of; they have long since gone to a luster home.

"Such fine boys," she says. She will not judge her children or us who condemned them; she does not even now know for sure what they did.

"Who can take a man's lite?" she says. "They say it's communism. communism... communism... communism." What is all this—the crime and the twisted martyrdom—to old Tessie Greenglass, alone on Sheriff St.?

Mer eyes with their heavy glasses looked out the window; after a while, she got up and said, "It's a quarter to four, already; I have to go home and cook supper." Someone suggested taking her home. Tessie Greenglass said she did not want to bother anybody; she could take the bus on the corner and be right there.

Tomorrow she would start the effort just to see Julius, whatever happened after that; for the rest of it, the Supreme Court appeal, for all the courts, "There is," she said, "nothing more to say." Nothing more meant to real hope but Julius,

She went downstairs in the elevator and walked in the cold toward the bus, a little red leather in her hat, her coat dark, her shoes old and black and carefully kept, her walk slow and tired and patient. She stopped at the corner and looked in her purse for the dime. She was on her way back to Sheriff St.

"I hope," she said at the end, "that I will see you in a happier time."

That happier time when somebody would have mercy. And, for Tessie Greenglass, there was no-body left to show any mercy except her son-in-law Julius—If he would see her.

ON NOT, RELEASE Philadelphia, Palace) incomber 18, 1970 (C)

A chance reging with acquaintances, then to an unscheduled visit to 20 South 12th Street.

Malking on Malnut Street at 19th, I met MANRIETTA OCTROY with JEAN FRAUTGIS and a MELEN SOBEL. MENPIETTA introduced mu to JEAN F. and I am sure she did not remember a previous meeting. We walked to Broad Street where MELEN SOBAL left, then halked to 13th and Chestnut where JEAN F. left, and since we were so near to 20 South 12th - went on there, which I had not planned on doing, but afraid I might miss something.

WENPIETTA and I worked on mailing, when a surprised voice addressed me, I could not remember the name until HENPIETTA greeted her - PAULINE LEVIN, CAP - in the conversations between us, I learned they, PAULINE, HENALUTTA and JEAN are Marxists of many years, and have worked on the paper "Daily World" and promoted their ideas among workers and politicians for years.

DAVID GPEENGLASS, and it said she saw him shortly after his release from prison, and expected to see his this coming week (There? I don't know). D.G. is related to Mrs. ROSENBERG, deceased - and HELEN SOBER is related to GREENGLASS - remember the traitors! I do: Small world - then PAULINE tild me she and husband HEPBERT have severed all connections with SVP - that SWP no longer have anything constructive to offer - they have out grown them.

In Lewisburg Penitentiary yesterday, David Greenglass met his lawyer, O. John Rogge, who flew there with members of Ser McCarthy's staff. Arrangements now are being made to bring Greenglass to New York next week to testify at a televised heafing. He will be held in a place other than the Federal House of Detention, because of the recent askault on Communist Jeader Robert Thompson there . . . Greenglass showed the visitors his small cell, and said to his lawyer: "I've seen worse rooms than this in the Catskills."

Greenglass Won't Testify Here Life Threatened: M'Carthy

The life of David Greenglass, convicted A-bomb spy who is scheduled to "tie up the Rosenberg spy ring directly to the Army Signal Corps," has been threatened, it was revealed Tuesday by Sen. Joseph McCarthy, chairman of the Senate Permanent Investigations Subcommittee.

McCarthy said he had learned? from a "completely reliable superiors said the Brothman emsource" that Greenglass' life might be in danger if he leaves the Federal penitentiary at Lewisburg to testify before the Senate group and that therefore the committee will go to the prison next week instead of summoning Greenglass here for a hearing as planned.

" "WE DON'T want anyone taking poishots at Greenglass," said McCarthy. He added that Greenglass told the committee's special counsel, Roy Cohn, that he could establish that extremely important material stolen from Fort Monmouth was put into the hands of Soviet espionage agents.

Meanwhile, it was disclosed that a man believed to be Abraham Brothman, who has been linked to the Rosenberg spy ring by confessed atom spy Harry Gold, will appear before the committee Wednesday.

It was revealed that Brothman, who recently completed a twoyear sentence for conspiring to obstruct justice in an espionage probe, has been working at the Techni. Flex Co. plant in Port Jervis. N. J.

A plant official, who asked to remain anonymous, said Brothman has the confidence of all who know him. Brothman is a chemical engineer. The spokesman said the plant does some work for Republic Aviation, but has no connection with radar production.

"We make some government material," he added, "but nothing of any importance.".

FTHE MOMENT we heard Brothman was free and worling in a radar plant, we called the Techni-Flex Co. and one of his ployed in the plant was the same one who had served time on the conspiracy charge," said Mc-Carthy.

McCarthy said about eight witnesses were called Tuesday. He declared he will go to Washington on Friday to quiz members of the Army's loyalty board, particularly a suspended civilian member, in connection with the Fort Monmouth investigation.

It was also learned that a key radar and guided-missile research scientist at Fort Monmouth allegedly has been identi> fied as a Communist despite | an ex-Red, now living in Maml, his denials and that he also will he summoned before the Senate probers. He was named by Assistant Director L. B. Nichols telephoned at 1:00 P.M., 11/4/53, and referred to a story written by EDWARD RANZAL, which appeared in the NY Times, 11/3/53. Mr. Nichols advised that the article was, in effect, deprecating the work of the Senate Investigating Committee. Mr. Nichols advised he had received a "rumble" that, although RANZAL's information was purportedly received from 0. John Rogge, actually RANZAL had not obtained the information from Mr. Rogge, but had obtained it from some employee of the NYO of the FEI.

I advised Mr. Nichols that I had no information concerning any employee giving any information to RANZAL, but aht I would have a check made and let him know.

I requested BA Thomas J. McAndrews to make inquiry concerning the possibility of any Agent having furnished such information to RANZAL.

This same date, at approximately 3:30 P.M., I telephoned Mr. Nichols and advised him I had not been able to locate anybody in the NYO who had been in contact recently with RANZAL. I did advise him that supervisor Thomas J. McAndrews had run into RANZAL this noon while at lunch and, thereafter, Mr. McAndrews furnished the following information to Mr. Nichols:-

IDM: HAP

ADDENDUM BY SA THOMAS J. MCANDREWS:

At approximately 3:30 P.M., ASAC Ian D. MacLennan teferred a telephone call from Asst. Dir. L. B. Nichols, Bureau, to the writer. Mr. Nichols had inquired of Mr. MacLennan whether or not there could have been a leak of information from the MYO to Edward Ranzal, reporter of the NY Times, which resulted in the story in the New York Times Deprecating the activities of the McCarthy Committee in its recent inquiries in New York. Mr. Nichols also indicated that Ranzal might not have contacted O. John Rogge for his story as he reported in the article which appeared in the NY Times, 11/3/53.

I told Mr. Nichols that neither I nor any of the Supervisors had been in touch with RANZAL in the recent past. I pointed out to him that RANZAL had covered the U.S. Court House for many years for the NY Times, was known to many Agents of NYO. I also told him that RANZAL had covered the ROSEMBERG trial and was entirely familiar with the personalities and the attorneys involved in this trial. I then advised him that on 11/4/53, I had met RANZAL and he had furnished me the following information voluntarily.

CC: NY File 65-15336 (DAVID GREENGLASS)

RANZAL learned from the press and from his contacts in the Court House that Roy Cohn, Chief Counsel, McCarthy Committee; O. John Rogge, Attorney for DAVID GREENGLASS; and others were going to Lewisburg Penitentiary on Thursday, 10/29/53 to interview DAVID GREENGLASS concerning his knowledge of Espionage at Fort Monmouth. RANZAL stated that when he heard this, he reviewed the testimony on DAVID GREENGLASS in the trial of the ROSENBERGS at the office of AUSA James B. Kilsheimer, III, in the Court House. On Friday, 10/30/53, in the evening, he telephonically contacted the office of O. John Rogge, Attorney for David Greenglass, and asked to be advised what information, if any, Mr. Rogge could provide him with concerning GREENGLASS' statements to representatives of the McCarthy Committee. Mr. Rogge was not present in the office, being in South Carolina. RANZAL talked to Mr. FABRICANT, a partner of O. John Rogge; and while they were talking, Rogge called his office long distance. RANZALL, through FABRICANT, interviewed ROGGE, and obtained information as to what material GREENGLASS had supplied the McCarthy Committee on 10/39/53. Mr. Rogge asked RANZAL to hold off printing the story until Rogge had a chance to discuss the matter with him. This, Ranzal agreed to do.

RANZAL pointed out that Rogge had a client who was due to appear before the McCarthy Committee and that he did not care to jeopardize this client's welfare by authorizing a story for RANZAL unless he had time to think it out carefully. I told Mr. Nichols this client was probably FRED JOSEPH KITTY, a figure in the ROSENBERG case. RANZAL then told me that on Monday, 11/2/53, he had contacted Rogge and Rogge had authorized his story which appeared in the NY Times of 11/3/53. This story indicated that the McCarthy Committee had not obtained new information from DAVID GREENGLASS and that at the time GREEN-CLASS had only furnished information to which he had testified in the ROSENBERG trial. RANZAL told me that on 11/3/53, he received a phone call from Mr. Roy Cohn in which Cohn stated Rogge had not approved the story and was angered with RANZAL for printing it. RANZAL told COHN this was not true and thathe had ROGGE's approval for the story. COHN had indicated to RANZAL that ROGGE had called COHN and protested the story. RANZAL, following his talk with COHN, called ROGGE and found that COHN had called ROGGE and protested the story, and not that Rogge had called Cohn.

I told Mr. Nichols that the above was volunteered by RANZAL; that no comments had been made by the Agent and, further, RANZAL had indicated that he had been requested to write an article for the Sunday Times, date unknown, indicating that the McCarthy Committee was not producing new information. This also was received without comment by the Agent. Mr. Nichols was asked whether or not he desired any further material on this and he said he did not. He instructed the writer to be certain that all Agents having business with the McCarthy Committee or the press be most careful not to indicate any attitude for or against the Committee. I told him NYO was aware of the desire of the Bureau for this procedure to be followed closely. He then said the Bureau had to walk down the middle of the road with reference to the McCarthy Committee. I told him NYO would follow the Bureau's instructions in this matter.

SAC, New York

SA THOMAS J. MCANDREWS (

SEMONTKL ESP. R.

At 1:40 P.M., 11/5/53, I telephonically furnished the following information to Assistant Director A. H. Belmont, Bureau.

I told Mr. Belmont that, unsolicited, O. John Rogge, Attorney for DAVID CREENGLASS, had telephonically contacted SA John A. Harrington on this date and had advised SA Harrington that he was calling to ask him whether or not he knew the McCarthy Committee was going to feinterview DAVID CREENGLASS at levisburg Penitentiary. SA Harrington explained to Mr. Roggee that we had no information available on the movements of the McCarthy Committee and could not be of assistance to him in this request. Mr. Rogge then stated he believed the McCarthy Committee was going to reinterview DAVID GREENGLASS at Lewisburg and that he had not bee invited to participate as yet in that interview. Mr. Rogge mentioned that he was thinking of calling or writing the authorities at Levisburg Penitentiary and requesting them not to permit DAVID GREENGLASS to be interviewed by any member of the McCarthy Committee unless he, O. John Rogge, was present. To this, SA Harrington made no comment.

Mr. Rogge further stated he had been requested by the NY Times to prepare an article on the McCarthy Committee's interview of DAVID GREENGLASS, which occurred on 10/29/53, and Mr. Roggee intended, in this article, to indicate that DAVID GREENGLASS had told the McCarthy Committee only the information to which he had testified in the trial of the ROSENBERGS. Mr. Rogge further indicated that he was upset by the innuendos appearing in the public press that his client, DAVID GREENGLASS, had information other than that to which he had testified in the ROSENBERG trial. He, as attorney, for DAVID GREENGLASS, thought it was a matter of annearn, in that he did not wish to have DAVID GREENGLASS represented in anything but an accurate light. (It is to be noted that as attorney, he is concerned about DAVID GREENGLASS' parole and release from the penitentiary.) To this, No comment was made by SA Harrington.

Mr. Rogge offered a copy of the article he was preparing for the MY Times to SA Harrington. No committment was made to accept this article, nor will the article be accepted. Mr. Rogge further added that his article will also deal with the role of the Senate Committee in such matters and will express the opinion that matters of espionage are beyond the scope of the Committee and within the investigative jurisdiction of the FBI.

Mr. Belmont said it would not be necessary to furnish the above information to the Bureau in teletype form.

At 9:15 A.M. this date, former Special Agent Frank Carr, now with the McCarthy Committee, telephonically contacted the writer and advised that he had a copy of an affidavit prepared by DAVID GREENGLASS for the McCarthy Committee which affidavit tark desired to furnish this office so that it could be brought to the attention of Mr. Nichols.

I arranged for SA Minihan to go over to Room 1402 to pick up this affidavit. I will contact Mr. Nichols telephonically upon receipt of this. The Carry then advised that the McCarthy Committee will call a Colonel from the Signal Corps as the first witness today to testify on the nature of the radar experiments at Fort Monmouth and their security classification. They will then read into the record the OREENGLASS affidavit. The third witness will be JOSEPH LEVITSKY who will probably claim the Fifth Amendment on all pertinent questions.

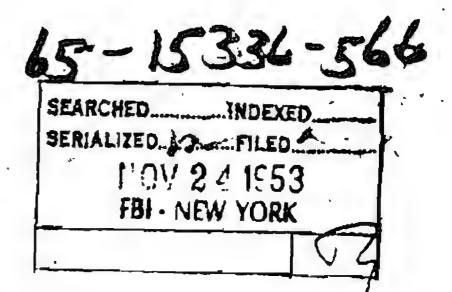

I advised Bill Cleveland of the Bureau of the above in the absence of Mr. Hennrich who was otherwise occupied at the time of my call. I told the Bureau that I would telephonically contact the Bureau upon the receipt of the CREENGLASS affidavit and any other additional information which might be forthcoming on the hearings of the McCarthy Committee in New York today.

SA Spencer is aware of the above.

Rebulet to Philadelphia dated 2/23/54 in instant case, and Enairted to New York, Philadelphia, and Pitts-turgh dated 2/25/54 entitled, "WILLIAM ANTER TO MOTERN, PERJURY."

Ponisontiary, hesisburg, Pa., stated hower received no information that AISLA MICE, william Memberson, Well and Carlo of the and EAVID GREANGIADS are associating with each other. He advised that all are quartered and employed separately, and further stated that COLD and CRARKGLAIS are quartered in a cell block which is located on the opposite end of the institution from where HISE and REMINGTON are quartered. He said GOLD and GREANGLASS attend inside secreation in different locations than HISE and PEMINGTON. He said, in his opinion, the only time they would see each other would be in the Dining Scom, library, or at the current Events forum, or at Music Appreciation, which are held once a wook under supervision, and this would be only for a short period of time.

Mr. HARRY (JhD, Inmate, United States Ponitontiary, advised that the name of ROBERT ALTER MARRY is not familiar to him and stated, after viewing his photograph, that he cannot recall seeing him and is positive that he has never talk at to him. In regard to Hall, SQLI states that he has never

DAVID GREENGLASS ESPICNAGE - R

The exhibits in this case, of which there are 119 remaining, should be retained for possible furture investigative or intelligence purposes, inasmuch as other individuals have been involved in espionage operations of which GREENGLASS was a part. They should be retained in the bulky exhibits.

It is recommended in view of the large number of photographs of the subject, that inasmuch as he is presently incarcerated in the penitentiary, some of the photographs can be destroyed as follows:

- 182 retain negatives and three copies of each photograph (destroy rest of photographs);
- 1B5 retain negatives and two copies of each photograph (destroy mest of photographs);
- 186 retain negatives and six copies (destroy rest of photographs);
- 187 retain negative and three copies (destroy rest of photographs).

In this conversation, the Sto. 16 writer advised Inspector Hennrich that former SA John A. Harrington Sto. 17 had been approached by RUTH GREENGLASS to act as a civilian parole sto. 18 advisor to DAVID GREENGLASS when and if DAVID GREENGLASS is paroled Sto. 20 in January, 1956. In that conversation, the writer pointed out to Mr. Hennrich that it was highly desirable to have someone act as an advisor to DAVID GREENGLASS inasmuch as this position would keep the Bureau current with GREENGLASS' activities and contacts. On the other hand, it was pointed out to Inspector Hennrich that, should a former Special Agent such as Harrington hold this position and that fact become public knowledge, it would unquestionably be utilized by the ROSENBERG COMMITTEE as propaganda against the Bureau.

The writer informed Inspector Hennrich that Mr. Harrington was willing to do anything which the Bureau desired in this matter although he had no particular preference for nolding this position. The writer suggested that, as a possible alternative to Mr. Harrington, JAMES B. KILSHEIMER, III, a former AUSA SDNY, completely conversant with the ROSENBERG case and now in the private practice of law, might be willing to serve in the capacity of civilian advisor to CREENGLASS.

In the telephone call of 12/2/55, at 8:30 P.M., Mr. Martin advised the Director had approved NYO making a discreet approach to Mr. Kilsheimer to ascertain his feelings on this topic. The Bureau does not desire at this time that Mr. Harrington serve in this capacity for the reasons mentioned above.

Greenglass, Spy Con, Asks Parole

David Greenglass, 34, key figure in the Rosenberg espionage trial, has applied for parole from the Lewisburg (Pa.) Federal Penitentiary, where he is serving 15 years as an admitted spy. He was sentenced in 1951. Greenglass was the government's star witness in the New York trial which resulted in the conviction of his sister Ethel Rosenberg, and her hubband, Julius Rosenberg, on charges of passing U. S. atomic secrets to Russia. The Rosenbergs were executed in June, 1953.

Greenglass, in Prison 5 Yrs., Loses Parole Plea

WASHINGTON, Apr. 3 M.—
The Federal Parole Board today denied a parole to David Greenglass, who slipped atomic secrets to the Soviet spy ring headed by Julius and Ethel Rosenberg. The eight-member board gave no reason for its denial of Greenglass' parole petition.

Greenglass has served five years of his fifteen-year prison sentence for his part in the Rosenberg spy ring. He freely admitted his espionage activities. The Rosenbergs were executed in Sing Sing in June, 1953, partly on the basis of his testimony.

Greenglass, a brother of Ethel Rosenberg, testified at their 1951 trial that he was recruited into the ring by his brother-in-law, Julius.

He testified that while serving as an Army sergeant at the Los Alamos, N. M., atomic bomb base, he slipped vital secrets to the Rosenbergs and to Harry Gold, Philadelphia blochemist now serving a twenty-five-year term.

Under the law, Greenglass automatically became eligible for parole this month, when he finished one-third of his term. His parole petition will not be reviewed by the parole board for it least one year, unless new evidence is presented that warrants it.

2 Atomic Spies Questioned By Senate Group

By WILLIAM KERWIN
WASHINGTON, April 25 (INS).
--Convicted atom spies Harry Gold and David Greenglass were brought from their penitentiary cells and questioned behind closed doors Wednesday by Senate investigators.

The Senate Internal Security subcommittee said that Gold will testify in public on Thursday and Greenglass on Friday in its Investigation of the use which Soviet intelligence has made of American citizens.

Robert Morris said both men were "very responsive witnesses" when he questioned them following their arrival from the Federal Penilentiary at Lewisburg, Pa.

Gold, who was arrested by the FBI in May, 1950, is serving a 30-year term. He was convicted of relaying atom-bomb secrets from Greenglass and British spy Klaus Fuchs to Russian intelligence.

Greenglass, a former Aimy corporal who was a government witness against Gold and Julius and Ethel Rosenberg, was sentenced to 15 years.

Mrs. Rosenberg, who was electrocuted with her husband In 1953, was Greenglass's sister.

GOLD, NOW 45, pleaded guilty to charges that he was a spy courier, but the Swiss-born chemist said he felt h was "only helping" Russia "obtain certain information that I thought it was entitled to" as a wartime ally of the U.S.

THESE DAYS:

Bavid Greenglass Forsaken by U. S.

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

A PPARENTLY one must be an unrelented Communist to enjoy the benefit of a favorable decision. Those who served this party or the government it represents and broke with it, for one reason or another, and aided the FBI or the Department of Justice or a Congressional committee are not even to be given a parole, despite the general tendency of parole boards to be easy on the wicked and to return them to society to do what comes naturally to them.

David Graenglass was the brother of Mrs. Julius Rosenberg who, with her husband, organized the theft of the atom bomb for Soviet Russia. Greenglass and Harry Gold aided the government in getting a conviction of the Rosenbergs who were no doubt important spies. Each was sentenced to fairly long terms. I have been informed that Greenglass was promised that if he testified truthfully he would get only five years. He got 15. I do not know who made the promise.

Parole Bid Rejected

He has recently applied for a parole and was turned down. No reason has been given publicly as to why he was turned down. Were Greenglass a Communist, there would be a Committee to Free Greenglass which would collect funds and hire expensive lawyers and make a great noise, but as he was a government witness he gets no such benefits and no such pressure is excreted in his favor.

Also, the way he is being treated must be a discouragement to others who may want to be government witnesses, as it is obvious that the government does not stand behind those who help it win cases against Communists or spies.

Judge Robert Morris, chief counsel of the Senate Internal Security Subcommittee, who fights Communists and spies professionally, spoke up to the U.S. Board of Parole in favor of David Greenglass. He said that the sentence of 15 years was unjust; that Greenglass cooperated with the FBI from the moment they first approached him.

decisions are related to justice or to policy. I am now engaged in reading all the decisions handed down by the courts in cases involving Communists and find a curious phenomenon, namely, that a sharp change took place in 1953 which was like a sharp knife cutting through a cheese. Apparently, prior to 1953 courts followed one pattern; subsequent to 1953, courts followed another pattern. The line of demarcation is too noticeable to be meaningless and I am now trying to discover whether there was a reason for the shift of attitude. Also, after the 1956 election, no Congressional committee has been effective in any anti-Communist activity, not even the experienced House Committee on Un-American Activities.

Sen. McCarthy a Victim

I am not discussing the rightness or wrongness of the changed attitude but am reporting a state of mind, an attitude, a characteristic of an era. Senator Joe McCarthy was killed off by the Army-McCarthy hearings and eventually by the act of condemnation, which ultimately destroyed him as a person. Joe would be the last man in the world to want to be regarded as a martyr. As only his most intimate friends and perhaps objective psychologists can know. Joe was a modest man, perhaps not a little frightened by his success, notoriety or acclaim, as one wishes to state it. At his height, he was as important as the President of the United States; at his lowest, he was not even invited to a general and really insignificant White House affair.

The exaggeration of McCarthy's achievements and the vindictiveness after his defeat have had the effect of literally scaring many public figures, particularly Senators, into adopting an apathetic attitude not only to McCarthy's favorite subjects but to anything that may evoke White House displeasure. Thus, a Senator speaking privately against a measure which he sincerely opposed but which he publicly favored, made the point that opposition to the President. offends and embarrasses the President very much, and that once the President has proclaimed his position in a speech or a press conference, a wide difference of opinion, however justified, becomes a personal matter with him and his staff. When asked, that about the separation of powers as stipulated in the Constitution, the Senator replied: "Someday some one will have the courage 'o break through. 'I am not that man."

Communists and Justice

TO the N. Y. Herald Tribune: I write to call attention to an unfortunate situation that, I believe, is working to our disadvantage in the free-world struggle to resist the Soviet conquest of the world.

The recent Supreme Court decisions are bringing about the liberation of virtually all the unregenerate Communist leaders whom our Department of Justice has caused to be convicted under the Smith Act.

This fact alone is puzzling. in view of the open boast by the leader of these American Communists, Nikita Khrushchev, that before the twentieth century runs its course there will be a Soviet America.

But even more distressing is the fact that at the same time those former Communist col-Soviet project, and in that he ical warfare. did wrong and has publicly said so. But as soon as the F. B. I. moved in on the case, he co- 23, 1957.

operated completely, even to the extent of being the government's chief witness against his own sister, who was subsequently executed.

At the time of his testimony he was assured that he would be given only a light sentence for his own involvement. Despite his co-operation, he was sentenced to fifteen years in jail and has now served more than seven years, and has been twice turned down by the United States Board of Parole before whom I appeared twice as a witness in his behalf. David Greenglass has a wife and two children and an aged mother who are pining for his return. He has paid his debt to society and his continued incarceration is working an injustice.

Here we have the spectacle we are keeping lodged in jail of unregenerate Communists being liberated by the scores to laborators who have been, in carry on their conquest of the sharp contrast to the unre- United States, while we are pentant ones who are being containing the co-operative set free, helping the F. "If even one important Communist had defected from Moscow in the last three years and authoritatively informed us of the tremendous Soviet scientific gains, we would not today be in such dire peril," Morris said.

The former New York jurist taid he was worried because "we are not getting any ex-Communists to come forward" and tell he authorities what they know.

Many Communists convicted order the Smith Act have been reed by recent U.S. Supreme nort decisions, he said, adding: The cooperative ones are in jail, he unregenerate go free."

Both Greenglass and Gold are at the Lewisburg, Pa., federal prison where Morris interviewed them Thursday. Greenglass is the brother-in-law of Julius Rosen-herg, executed with his wife Ithel in 1953 for giving U.S. atom secrets to Russia.

Senators Ask Laws to Lure Reds to West

Washington, May 20 (IP).—The Senate Internal Security subcommittee called today for new laws to make desertion to the West more appealing to the citizens of Communist countries.

"The American government has been remiss in its policy of encouraging individuals to come forward and reveal the inner workings of the Communist conspiracy," the subcommittee said in Section 10 of its 1957 report.

"Continued failure of our government to have a clear-cut offer to would-be defectors from the Soviets and their satellites militates against our obtaining on our side these valuable and knowledgeable people," it said.

Urge Sanctuary Guarantee
The subcommittee recommended that Congress enact laws "to assure sanctuary in the United States and a decent standard of living to Communist defectors who bring us valuable information."

It also called for a law permitting Congressional investigating sommittees "after consultation with the Attorney General, to bring into the United States aliens whose testimony is desired and whose admission will not endanger the national security."

The subcommittee said the predicament of convicted atom spies Harry Gold and David Greenglass represents a case in point of Communist defectors who are treated worse than Communists he chose not to cooperate with U.S. officials.

It said several convicted spies already had been released from prison, under U.S. Supreme Court decisions, while Gold and Greenglass who "have cooperated in every way with all federal agencies" still are in prison.

Greenglass' was permitted to plead guilty to the leaser charge of conspiracy. He testified he gave a description of the atomic bomb to Julius Rosenberg while working as a technical sergeant at the Atomic Research Center in Lbs Alamos, N. M., in 1945.

He started his prison sentence on July 6, 1951. Under the law, the mandatory date for his release is May 1, 1961. But a Justice Department official said he will be released Nov. 16 "because of credits for good behavior."

David Greenglass

Although he is not bein a recased by action of the Federal Parole Board, Greenglass will remain under Federal supervision until Nov. 5, 1965, and will have to report periodically, to a parole officer.

The Parole Board turned down two Greenglass requests for parole earlier in his prison term.

Two co-conspirators in the Rosenberg case, Morton Sobell and Harry Gold, are serving thirty-year sentences.

The Rosenbergs were the first Americans ever put to death for espionage by an American cour. in peace time. They were seiltenced to death in 1951, but the case continued before the Lour's until almost the very moment of their execution.

The Federal Board of Parolo said Greenglass will complete the minimum term of his 15-year sentence, with time off for good behavior, on that date. The Rosenbergs were executed in 1953 as atomic spies for Russia.

Rosenberg Accomplice Out of Jail

One of the three all-but-forgotten accomplices in the celebrated Rosenberg spy case will be freed today after nearly a decade in prison.

David Greengless, now 38, was a brilliant technician and an Army sergeant, when during wartime he picked up data on the A-bomb and slipped it to the Rosenbergs.

HE WAS SENTENCED to 15 years in jail, and has served nine years and four months. Today, he is being freed from the Federal House of Dentention on parole, his sentence cut down for good behavior.

The defection of Igor Gouzenko, a Russian code clerk in Ottawa, Ont., gave authorities in this country the tip on the syp ring involving Greenglass, his sister Ethel Rosenberg, her husband Julius, and two others, Morton Sobell and Harry Gold.

Greenglass admitted he picked up information about the A-bomb in Los Alamo; N. M., and passed it to the Rosenbergs. He said Julius had given him money and an escape route to a Communist country when authorities began to close in on them, but he decided not to run, Instead, he testified against the Rosenbergs. They were both executed at Sing Sing in 1953. Sobell and Gold each drew 30 years.

Another member of the ring, physicist Klaus Fuchs, was seized in England in 1950 and imprisoned there. Since his term ended, he has gone to East Germany.

Greenglass Set Free, Recalling Great Spy Trial

The gates of a federal prison opened here today to disgorge a pudgy, former Army sergeant, thus closing a chapter in the world's greatest spy story.

He is David Greenglas-the spy-turned-"patriot" whose testimony helped send his sister and brother-in-law, Ethel and Julius Rosenberg, to the electric dchair.

Greenglass, now 38, a brilliant physicist and father of two, took his first free steps in nearly 10 years as he walked out of the Federal House of Detention, 427 West st. at 8 a. m.

Greenglass was ligure in the sweeping 1950 drackdown on Soviet espionage in this country - a crackdown that came too late to pievent Russia from pulling off the greatest coup in the history of spying: the theft of secrets of the atom bomb.

But his most electrifying moment came when he suddenly turned on his sister and brother-in-law and identified them as key members of a Soviet spy ring.

David Greenglass, 38, perhaps the most ordinary and understandable of the odd and illassorted Americans who turned May Move to Southwest over atomic seems to the Russians, returns to private life today.

Even before his scheduled release this morning from the Federal House of Detention, 427 West St., after serving 912 years of a 15-year term, he issued an appeal for no publicity. Through his lawyer, O. John Rogge, he said:

David Greenglass, atom bomb spy whose testimony helped send his sister and brother-in-law, Ethel and Julius Rosenberg, to the electric chair, was released today after having served nine years and four months in Federal prison.

By John Molleson David Greenglass, thirtyeight, convicted atom spy, yesterday was released from Federal custody after serving nine years and four months of a filteen-year prison sentence. His term was shortened because of good behavior.

During World War II, Greenglass gave atom-bomb secrets to a Russian-recruited spy ring that included his sister and Lrother-in-law, Ethel and Julius Rosenberg. His testimony in 1951 helped send the Rosenbergs to the electric chair in Sing Sing Prison, in June, 1953.

The short and freshly shaved former Army machinist was set fire at 8:35 a. m., in the company of his attorney, O. John Rogge. A steel door flid open and the two men faced a crowd iof about seventy newsmen, photographers, longshoremen and truckers who had gathered before the Federal House of Detention, 427 West St., at W. 11th St.

"Drop dead, you lousy Communist," shouted a truckman. These probably were the first words Greenglass heard as a free man.

The Curious Case Of David Greenglass

Should Atom Bomb Spy Be Free After Only Nine Years?

By RUTH REYNOLDS

THERE is disagreement concerning justice in the recent release of David Greenglass from a federal penitentiary after serving approximately nine years of his sentence.

Some hold that by giving top secret information on atom homb lenses to Julius and Ethel Rosenberg, who forwarded the facts to Russia. Greenglass was just as guilty as they of espionage in wartime and, therefore, deserved to die with his sister and brother-in-law in the electric chair. As minimum punishment, in their opinion, the 15-year sentence he received should have been doubled.

Long Overdue

There are others who say the release of Greenglass was long overdue, that he was only a dupe of his relatives and he was badly used by the government. Without his testimony as a prosecution witness, the Rosenbergs might not have been convicted. In exchange for his evidence Greenglass was promised a sentence of no more than five years. But his judge thought he deserved more. Apparently members of the federal parole board thought so too, for they turned down his applications six times without stating a reason.

His story properly begins in 1939, when his sister, Ethel, 23, and his addred brother-in-law, Julius, 21, joined the Communist Party. David, then a 17 year-old learning to be a mechanic, became a member of the Young Communists' League. He listened eager-

Julius and Ethel talked of the superiority of Russian socialism over U. S. capitalism.

The nation heard shocking news by radio on the Sunday afternoon of Dec. 7. 1941—the Japanese had bombed Pearl Harbor. Among the millions who listened were three later to become known to David—30-year-old Dr. Klaus Fuchs of London, 28-year-old Harry Gold of Cincinnati, a d 23-year-old Morton Sobell of Washington.

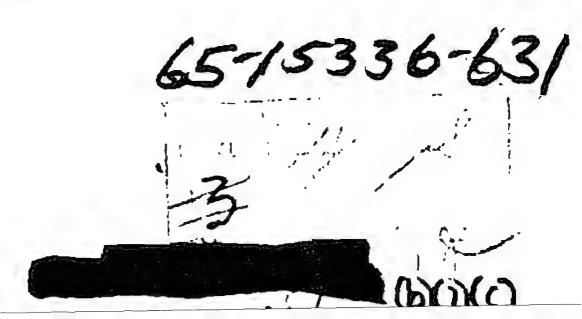

Fuchs, a physicist who had fled Hitler's Germany, was heart and soul for the Soviet, although he was planning to take out British citizenship. Gold, a junior in biochemistry at Cincinnati's Xavier University, had worked for 10 years as a Soviet spy in the United States. And Sobell had become a Communist Party member in 1939, along with Rosenberg, his classmate in electrical engineering at City College in New York.

In the 21 months which followed Pearl Harbor, Fuchs, Gold, Sobell and the Rosenbergs continued their work for Russia. Sobell, already employed in the Navy Ordnance Bureau, became a radar expert. Julius worked as a civilian engineering inspector in the Army Signal Corps. Ethel attended party meetings.

David, who had become a good mechanic in the family-owned machine shop, narried the former Ruth Printz. He had not joined the Communist Party, chicily, as he was to say later, because he was too lazy to accept party discipline. High "rather lie in bed on Sanday morning than deliver the Daily Worker from days to door." But his brother-in-law was still his hero.

Ville.

Then David was drafted into the Amny, with the prospect of hattle service ahead. However, by July, 1944, he was able to tell Ruth that he was being kept in the U.S. on an assignment so toh secret he didn't know what the undertaking was.

First, he went as a machinist and technical seigeant to the Manhattan District Project at Oak Ridge, Tenn. Then, he was transferred to Los Alamos, N. M., where he was made assistant foreman in a machine shop casting molds for lenses. He was told as much as necessary about his job, but nothing more-for, with the opoperation of Britain and Canada, the United States had started production of the atom bomb. Russia, the other major ally in World War II, was excluded from the secret.

Dn Nov. 29, 1941—three months after Tech. Sgt, Greenglass' transfer to the Los Alamos project—Ruth arrived in Albuquerque for their second wedding anniversary—and something else.

She told David, "Julius says he's doing what he always wanted to dohe's giving information to the Soviet Union." Julius knew David was working on the atomic bomb, and he wanted all the information David could give, so it could be sent on to Russia. Julius' argument was that if all nations had atomic information, no one power could threaten others with the bomb.

He Was Scared

"I can't do it, Ruth," David said at first, because he was scared. But later, his admiration for Julius overcame his fear. He didn't want his hero to fail at anything he tried.

So, David gave Ruth a description of the Los Alamos plant, the approximate number of workers and the heratofora secret names of scientists connected with the project. Ruth memorized this information and repeated it to Julius,

Two months later David returned to New York on leave. He gave Julius a number of sketches of a flat-type lens mold being used in the atomic experiments. He also gave his brother-in-law a list of 20 to 25 possible spy recruits at Los Alamos, "I recognized them by their Communist Party catch phrases," he was to say much later.

At the end of his leave, David returned to Los Alamos. He didn't know that Dr. Fuchs was there, and Harry Gold, too. In February, 1945, Rith got a government job in Albumerque with the Office of Price Administration and found un apartment there. David commuted the 100 miles from the bomb proving ground each weekend to see her. Gold came to see Greenyluss in Albuquerque. "I have come from Julius Have you any information for me?" :

David again drew sketches-this sime of an improved lens mold on which he was working. He described in writing how this lens was used to trigger the homb. Also, he added to his list of primising spy recruits. Gold included this information in a thick packet of atomic bomb secrets he had just received from Ur. Fuchs and took the whole to Julius.

Atomic bombs were dropped on Hirpshima and Nagasaki. Now the war was done-but espionage was not. In New York, on furlough, in September, 1949, David gave Julius a sketch of a crosssection of the Nagasaki bomb.

"Very good!" his hero complimented

TEBRUARY, 1943, found Greenglass honorably discharged and back in New York with his wife and baby, Steven. He had thought the family machine shop would provide him with a comfortable living, but somehow, by legal but sharp practice, Julius had become sole owner. There was quite a let of resentment over that.

Aithough there has been no mention here of security work done by representatives of the Federal Boreau of Investigation and Scotland Yard, they were exceedingly busy. The fruits of their activity first showed in 1947, when 11 Communist Party leaders were indicted by a federal grand jury in New York. But the Rosenbergs felt they had nothing to worry about - until they heard that Pr. Fuchs, arrested in London on Feb. 3, 1950, had given the FBI names of 124 Americans with whom he worked, 12 of them spies.

Rosenberg hurried to David's apartment in Rivington St., pressed $1,000 on him, urged him to go to Mexico, and prdvided him with cloak-and-dagger instructions.

"When you reach Mexico City," Julius directed, "write a letter to the Soviet ambassador. Say something favorable about the Soviet role in the United Nations and sign your letter 'I. Jackson.'. Three days later, stand beside the statue of Columbus, with a travel guide in your hand.

"You will be approached by a stranger," Julius continued. "Say the statue is magnificent and that you are from Oklahoma. He will say 'There are more beautiful statues in Paris.' Then he will give you money and a passport. Go to Vera Cruz and take a ship for Sweden. When you get to Stockholm, follow the same routine at the statue of Linnaeus. You will be taken to Czechoslovakia."

Ruth in Hospital

Greenglass told his brother-in-law that he couldn't possibly leave New York then. Ruth, expecting her second child, had been hadly burned when she upset a gasoline stove and was in a hospital.

He felt he was justified in keeping the money. He had, thus far, received only $500 (from Gold) for helping Julius.

In April, when Ruth was a little hetter, Rosenberg again urged David to fiee. Julius figured (correctly) that Fuchs would identify Gold as a courier, and that, sooner or later, Gold would identify Greenglass as an informer, and David might mention Rosenberg.

Gold was arrested on May 23, 1950.
The next day Julius hurried to the hospital to see Ruth. Her baby had been born, but she was still hospitalized because of her hurns.

"David will be next if you don't get lo Mexico," he warned.

"I can't travel with a 10-day-old hild," she objected.

"My doctor says you will be all right you take canned milk and boil the water," Julius assured his sister-in-law. "Get a statement from him saying you've all been inoculated."

"I would not ask a doctor to falsify," said the young woman, who had a curious code of ethics.

Now Hosenberg handed David $1,000, wrapped in brown paper. David gave this to another relative, with instructions what to do with it "if anything happens."

On June 15, two FBI agents knocked at the Greenglass door. It took David some time to answer, because he was in the kitchen preparing the baby's formula. One of the agents said, "We are trying to locate materials, lost, misplaced or stolen at the Los Alamos project, You worked there, didn't you?"

"Yes," answered David. "But I can't help you . . . I know nothing about it."

After more questioning, the agents asked if they might look around the apartment.

"I have nothing to hide," said David,

"go shead."

The agents departed, carrying 24 enapshots of Greenglass and his wife.

"This is the man I contacted in Albuquerque," charged Harry Gold after studying the pictures.

Greenglass was arrested July 16.
"I'd have run away, or committed suicide, if it were not for my wife," he said. That day, the relative turned the $4,000 over to O. John Rogge, retained as a lawyer for Greenglass. That day, Greenglass talked, and the next elening FBI agents called on the Rosenbergs just as they were putting their young children to bed in their Knickerbocker Village apartment. Thus was the first U. S. married couple arrested on spy charges.

On Aug. 18, Julius, David and Ethel were indicted on counts of conspiracy to commit espionage in wartime. Also indicted were two fugitives, Sobell, the radar expert, and Anatolia H. Yakovlev, Russian vice consul in New York during 1944-46. Under the Espionage Act of 1917, the penalty, if the defendants were found guilty, could be anything from 30 years to death. Late that month Sobell was picked up in Mexico. Yakovlev na long since returned to Russia.

Harry Gold pleaded sailty and, for Couldness, David Greenglass took the sail step.

Why?

The obvious answer was that he wanted to save his own skin, but Green glass denied that his motive was selfish lie said, much later, that his belief in Communism began to crumble in 1941 when he realized he was stealing for "devastation on a tremendous scale. I'm not a violent man and when I think other things I did by non-violence, I wonder at myself."

At any rate, Greenglass agreed to to a government witness.

THE TRIAL of the Rosenbergs and Sobell began on March 6, 1951, in Manhattan before Federal Judge Irving R. Kaufman. The government called 20 witnesses, including Ruth and David Greenglass.

In cross-examination. Rosenberg: lawyer, Emanuel H. Bloch, sought to show that Greengiass, who had flunked eight out of eight subjects at Brookly: Polytechnic Institute, was not sufficiently equipped scholastically to steal and relay complex atomic data.

Judge Kaufman cut short this line of questioning, reminding the jurors that David confessed stealing, and passing on, top secret on terial. The indictment didn't specify that the material, once stolen, had to be accurately delivered.

said the judge.

Bloch then attempted to show that Greenglass had lied to get revenge on his prother-in-law because of the family machine shop deal, and because Rosedberg, on one occasion, refused to lead him $2.000.

When Rosenbery took the stand he made a blanket devial of everything—every single strice thing. He never dreamed of asking anyone to furnish kink secrets of national defense. He didn't even know his brother-in-law cas at Lov Alamos? He know nothing about Russic except what he read in the New York papers.

Both Wary

But he and Ethel were extremely wary when cross-examined by the prosecutor, U. S. Attorney Irving H. Saypol.

Mrs. Rosenberg accused her brother of lying when he said she typed up the material he gave Julius about atomic bombs and national defense. "I once loved my brother." she said, "but I'd be pretty unuatural if I hadn't changed."

In summation, Bloch said the wrong couple were on trial and he eastigated Greenglass in a enrious way. "He loved his wife more than he loved himself." Bloch shouted. "He was willing to sacrifice his sister and her husband to jave his wife. Look at that terrible spy," Bloch waved toward F'hel, "and then compare her with Mrs. Greenglass, who came here fill dolled up, arrogant, an eager between

"Not only are the Greenglasses selfconfessed spies, they are mercenary spies! They'd do anything for money. They'd hurder people for money and they are Hoch charged.

Of Rosenberg, his lawyer spoke tenderly, saying he was "like a schnook [dupe]" obligingly doing things for Greenglass.

Saypol took quite the opposite view. He said the Rosenbergs, so long admired and adored by David, "dragged a voung soldier into the sordid business of hetraying his own country."

Counsel for Sobell did not deny that the radar expert was a low order spy, but he did stress that not one witness linked Sobell with the atom spying.

Out Overnight

In conclusion, Judge Kaulman reminded the jurors that the fact that Hussia was an ally was immaterial; that the defendants handed top secret information over to anybody was material.

The jury was out overnight. Then they pronounced the defendants guilty. Judge Kaufman retired to pray for guidance.

In the end, he sentenced Greenglass to 15 years; Subell and Gold to 30 . . .

and the Rosenbergs to death.

For two years and three months, the Rosenbergs fought for their lives. Their case was reviewed 16 times, on various points, by the U.S. District Court and seven times by the U.S. Court of appeals. Seven times the U.S. Supreme Court turned down petitions for review and twice the President of the United States turned down appeals for elemency.

Ethel's mother fought, too. At Sing Sing she begged her daughter to "talk like David did."

"Yon're not my mother!" Ethel raged.
"I don't want anything more to do with you. You're as had as Dave!"

The Rosenbergs were electrocuted on June 19, 1953.

"She's no daughter of mine," sobbed the mother, and she refused to sit Shiva (to observe the traditional Jewish mourning) for Ethel.——

As the years passed. Greenglass and Gold, both in the federal penitentiary at Lewisburg, Pa., talked with many federal investigators, and several times appeared at Senate subcommittee hearings.

"Before bringing myself to testify."
David once said, "I thought quite a while.
And, at times, after testifying, I was sorry I testified—because these people were my flesh and blood. I felt affection for them, and I still do."

Then, turning on his dead kinfolk, he said, "But if these people had not wanted to be martyrs they could have just put up their hands and said 'Stop!' und told the truth. It's hard to be called a murderer by people," said Greenglass, refering to himself, "but to deliberately martur pourself for an erroneous cause is the most hypocritical thing a person can do."

Well, David Greenglass is free new. Sonje people say he paid too much for his crime; some say he paid too little. But such is the attitude of Americans toward traitors, even toward those who regret their deeds, Greenglass probably will keep on paying and paying. At least, he has a long waitsto go to get into the good graces of his countryment under his own identity.

plorton Sobell was a radar expert and a Red spy.

The Rosenbergs paid with their lives.

Harry Gold was courier for ring of Soviet spies.

Ruth Greenglass was go-between for her husband.

. David Greenglass passed on sketches of secret lens mold.

On 10/12/73, RUTH GREENGLASS contacted SA and asked whether it was advisable to contact Judge IRVING KAUFMANN. She was advised that it was not considered proper for her to do so in view of the fact that he was the trial judge in the ROSENBERG case. However, the decision would be her's. She then asked should she contact Judge IRVING SAYPOL and indicated that she was very reluctant to do so. Again she was advised that the decision was her's, however, Judge SAYPOL could (not recommend that she contact counsel. She then said that she would contact O. J. ROGGE telephonically and advised the results of the contact. Mrs. GREENGLASS contacted the office again and advised that she had been in touch with attorney O. J. ROGGE and advised him that she would not cooperate by participating in the TV broadcast of Channel 13 in any way. She also told him that at the present time she was a private citizen and if Channel 13 went ahead with their broadcast and exposed her identity and residence that she would take whatever action was appropriate against them for violating her right of privacy.

She then stated that she would discuss the matter with her relative who is an attorney.

On 12/13 and 14/73, Supervisor R. DENNIS of the Bureau telephonically contacted the NYO and inquired whether the Bureau (NYO) had been instrumental in aiding GREENGLASS to change his name and secondly had we promised to protect his new identity. He indicated he was under pressure from the Department to make available to ALVIN GOLDSTEIN, TV producer for Channel 13, copies of the interviews of GREENGLASS by Bureau Agents. The Department was taking the position that these should be made available to GOLDSTEIN unless the Bureau could present reasons why not. Further, they alleged that it was not the Department who would be giving these interviews publicity, but Channel 13.

Mr. DENNIS was advised that on the first point the GREENGLASS family were being barassed by threatening and abusive phone calls. In collaboration with their attorney, O. JOHN ROGGE, it was decided they should change their name and address. This was done also to protect the children. It was also understood since we were in at the inception of this plan that the Bureau would not divulge the new identity. This was reaffirmed on numerous occasions throughout the years.

It was also pointed out that several members of the ROSENBERG apparatus had never been prosecuted because of a lack of corroborating witnesses. Should one or two be found, GREENGLASS might again be a witness, but he is still in the status of a confidential informant. The violations being wartime espionage, the Statute of Limitations does not apply.

Mr. DENNIS expressed his gratitude and stated he will do all in his power to protect the GREENGLASS family.

On 1/31/74, Supervisor RICHARD DENNIS of the Bureau advised the writer he had contacted JOHN A. MINTS, Inspector in Charge, Office of Legal Counsel and received the following opinions regarding action the Bureau might take in the forthcoming Impact TV special:

- 1) The Bureau would have no legal status for bring-ing an injunction against Impact to prohibit their disclosing subject's current identity. Such injunction would have to be brought by DAVID GREENGLASS.
- Impact with a request that GREENGLASS's identity not be disclosed since this could result in Impact making the Bureau's request known either in the documentary itself or otherwise and a relationship between GREENGLASS and the Bureau might be misinterpreted as other than the actual one that exist.

Supervisor DENNIS advised that ALVIN GOLDSTEIN, the Impact director, had indicated he did not intend to make GREENGLASS's current identity and address known but this has not been confirmed in writing.

TV's Newest Folk Heroes—the Rosenbergs

By BENJAMIN STEIN

The most unlikely set of heroes in the whole bizarre history of television "journalism" is emerging. They are Julius and Ethel Resemberg, the couple who were found guilty of conspiracy to pass atomic secrets to the Soviets during a trial in 1951 and were executed in 1953.

On Jan. 28, the ABC-TV network showed a two-hour-long dramatization of the trial of Julius and Ethel Rosenberg which made the two atom spies seem to be Heidi and Tom Sawyer with a generous mixture of Romco and Juliet thrown in. The point of the creators of the show, apparently, was that Julius and Ethel Rosenberg were two harmless, intensely lovable people caught in a web of jealousy and perjury and national hysteria through which their innocence shone forth like a beacon light.

The most penetrating tool of the television propagandist's art—showing only one side of an issue, set the mood throughout. The Rosenbergs were shown modestly denying any incolvement in the atomic theft conspiracy. Whenever they took the stand, they answered in a steady and clear tone, making just the right amount of eye contact to show their sincerity.

Their accusers and the prosecutors were cast perfectly as television heavies—either swarthy and bloated or thin and bloodless, never normal.

The TV script skimmed lightly over the unanimous finding of guilly by a jury of the Rosenbergs' peers and its consistent affirmance by higher courts including the Supreme Court, which refused to order a stay of execution. Every time the Rosenbergs took the rith amendment as to their possible Communist affiliations, the commentator-narrator reminded the audience that the pair were exercising a constitutional right.

No mention was made of the world consequences of the Soviets' early possession of the a'om bomb. Moreover, the program made a selective cut of the letters the Rosenbergs exchanged while they were awaiting execution in prison: "I love you and the children" was 'he gist of the touching exenunges we heard on the air. Missing were the sections of the letters to each other that were loaded with Communist jargon. Yet surely if we are invited to look beyond the factual evidence produced at the trial, these things are relevant.

The result was that a person unfamiliar with the case would surely have concluded that the Rosenbergs were innocent victims of a legally sanctioned lynching.

A lat ... fully done piece of work by the National Public Affairs Center for Television has been produced by Alvin Goldstein, a former CP national and his colleagues. It is "The Unquiet Death of Julius and Ethal Rosenberg" and will be aired on Feb. 25. This show is a chronology of the events leading up to the conspiracy, the trial and the execution. It features interviews with the participants in the case, the lawyers for both sides and the jurors.

A narration written by the producer links the parts. But even in this program, the commentary is a veritable parody of impartiality. The Communist affiliations of the Rosenbergs were formed as a result of their witnessing the "complete failure of unbridled capitalism" or words to that effect, says the narrator. To prove the point that the capitalist system "lays waste to peoples' lives," the producers call upon a monor was a Communist during the 1930s to say how poor his family had been.

The producers clearly intend to show the Rosenbergs not only innocent, but heroic. They are, however, undone by their own thorougnness. One particularly eloquent juror recalls that he had a hard time finding a woman guilty of a capital crime. Then he says, "But I thought of how what she had done might lead to the death of my children, and millions of children all over the world, and maybe even her children."

It is puzzling indeed to speculate where all the interest in the Rosenbergs comes from after 20 years. Two books, one pro and one anti-Rosenberg recently have been published. But the incentive for the television shows may be a bit different.

Alvin Goldstein said he was inspired to do "The Unquiet Death" by his work in rebroadcasting the Watergate hearings for educational TV. He reasoned that if people within the government had done illegal things to their political opponents in 1972, perhaps they had also done them in 1951. Perhaps, he thought, the government had also do their political of the Rosenbergs because of their political views.

Mr. Goldstein realizes that there was a great deal of factual evidence to convict the Rosenbergs, but he says that is essentially irrelevant. Guilt or innocence of the charge is not the real issue, he says. The real guts of the matter is that the Rosenbergs were being tried for their political views "... and that is what is happening today," he says.

It may be that people are being pilloried for their political views today, but it's altogether likely that the victims may not be the ones Mr. Goldstein thinks they are. Could there be an analog to the termenting of people without regard to their guilt or innocence, but solely on the basis of a superheated political climate of retribution, in what we've seen on the TV news in the last 12 months? Who else could play the role today of all thory willnesses before congressional committees in the 1950s who were trotted out to generate publicity?

But television has not yet made that scemingly obvious connection. With shows like the ones about the Rosenbergs, television exonerates those found guilty by a mry of their peers with due process of law. With its "news" shows, television can mete out the punishment of embarrassment, humiliation, loss of friends and status, in a word, all the things the now-despised congressional committees of the '50s once dispensed Or, as in the rase of the Rosenbergs, with the facts of the era or their trial, the managive a whole generation, unfamiliar with the facts of the era or their trial, the managine in people.

This leads to a further point about the Rosenbergs' TV renaissance. The producers of "The Unquiet Death" think that it is important to see shows about the late '40s and early '50s because "... that was when our current leaders were formed and they are still running things."

Richard Nixon is shown as a young Senator, talking about Communists at the State Department. The point of that snippet, one is told, is that the same repressive forces were at work then and now. That viewpoint is undoubtedly sincere and widely held, especially in the circles that might watch "The "nquiet Death."

"Repression" is an odd point for the producers of "The Unquiet Death" to be making, hough. This show which is bitterly critical of the American system of economics, justice and government was funded 100% by federal government money through the Corporation for Public Broadcasting. Some repression!
